Relaunch of the MedBiquitous Program

In June 2019, I took on the helm of MedBiquitous. I am happy to announce that in June 2020 we will be officially relaunching the MedBiquitous Program to the world. Beginning next month, health professions schools, certification boards, software companies, and others will be able to join the MedBiquitous Program and take advantage of its many benefits, including:

- Serve on work groups and be involved in the standards development process
- Receive access to the MedBiquitous community network
- Vote on development efforts
- Propose new standards or guidelines that should be created
- Influence national/international conversations on education and credentialing data practices
- Have their representatives serve in leadership roles, including the Steering Committee

Please be on the lookout for a special announcement in early June. For more information on applying to MedBiquitous, check here.

Road to MedBiquitous Kicks Off Themed Set of Webinars

T3 Innovation Network Webinar

A message from the T3 Innovation Network:

As we enter the home stretch of Phase 2 for the T3 Innovation Network, we would like to invite you to participate in a mid-year review of our collective progress. This 90-minute webinar will take place on Thursday, June 11th at 3:00 p.m., ET and is open to the entire network as well as other interested stakeholders.

The webinar will cover what we have accomplished to date and what lies ahead. This includes our progress toward a data and technology infrastructure where all learning counts, competencies become currency, and learners and workers are empowered with their data. We will also feature an update on how the T3 Network projects are supporting scalable innovation and pilot testing of Interoperable Learning Records (ILRs). In addition, we will be making several important announcements, so you won't want to miss this update and preview of what's to come. We hope you will join us.
